101 Emerging Connectors: 2008

The concept of "Connectors" came to our attention through The Tipping Point by Malcolm Gladwell. As an organization that values working across sectors, connecting for the common good, and achieving results regardless of who gets the credit, we decided to study and celebrate leaders who behave this way as our 50th Anniversary project. According to Gladwell, "Connectors are people who get things done through others by serving as 'pockets of trust.' They 'are far more important than we would ever have imagined. The people who know everyone in some oblique way may actually run the world. In a very down-to-earth, day-to-day way, they may make the world work.'"
